

Bournemouth University

CAROL BURNS PRIZE

Carol Burns managed the Open Access Centre in the University for many years. During that time she supported countless students in a very dedicated and conscientious manner. Sadly Carol passed away eight years ago and it was the family's declared wish that the university establish a memorial fund to recognise exceptional student achievement.

The annual prize of £100 will go to a student who has shown particular innovation and effectiveness in the way that they have used IT in their dissertation, using generally available University software such as Word, PowerPoint, Access, SPSS etc. It is also expected that the dissertation should be of high quality academically.