BU graduate has Wimbledon all a-twitter

BU graduate David Ornstein has a bird's eye view of Wimbledon this year.

David, who completed his BA (Hons) in Multi-Media Journalism in 2006, now works for BBC Sport and is using his skills to twitter his way through the day's matches at the world's most prestigious tennis tournament.

During the current Wimbledon fortnight, the former editor of student newspaper Student Press (now The Wire) is keeping tennis fans up-to-date with all the action via the BBC website.

On Twitter, David provides an insider's view of events both on and off the court – from an intensive 'Murraywatch' featuring Britain's number one tennis player Andy Murray to the latest reports on fans soaking up the tournament atmosphere.

"The BBC is a great place to be and BU prepared me very well," said David from SW19, the world-famous Wimbledon post code.
