What will you study

In just two weeks you will become part of a tight-knit television production crew, producing on-location field segments and bringing them back to the exciting environment of the live television studio. You decide what type of programme, from entertainment to factual, documentary to sci-fi. You bring the ideas, and we'll give you the tools to make it happen.

Bournemouth University is home to two 4K television studios. You will get hands-on experience with vision mixers, pedestal cameras, camera control units, green screen, sound production and more, covering a range of management strategies and transferable skills from the creative industries and beyond.

- Learn core film and television production skills including camerawork and editing
- Become part of a television studio crew, generating content, and working in live production
- Polish your camera and video editing skills both technically and editorially
- As a team choose if you are making multicamera, factual, children's, drama, entertainment, sci-fi or something no one has even thought of yet!
- Collaborative working as part of a production team
- Immersive simulation of the real-world television studio process
- Understand the evolving media landscape and engage with equality, diversity, and inclusive practices
- Pathway to Masters: Experience a taster of BU's award-winning MA Media Production framework

The £2,500 fee for the course includes:

- Six hours of activities each day
- Study in dedicated, high-end facilities
- Industry visit
- Social activities
- Organised excursions to London and the Jurassic Coast
- Accommodation, breakfast and lunch included
- Use of relevant university facilities, including free Wi-Fi
- Airport transfers.*

* Offered during specified time period on arrival day. If you are arriving outside this time, we are happy to arrange alternative transport with additional fees.

Making friends

Bournemouth is a very lively and cosmopolitan town, with lots of ways to enjoy yourself and relax away from your studies.

During the week we will organise activities to help you settle in and make new friends. You will have time to enjoy games on the beach, sightseeing trips to London and places of historical and cultural interest.

Every Friday night throughout the summer there is a free firework display over Bournemouth Pier which is an amazing spectacle!

Where you will stay

You will stay in Bournemouth University campus accommodation with a range of catering options provided. The accommodation also has its own kitchen which you are free to use if you would like to share national dishes with your new friends.

Broadband is available in every room and there is Wi-Fi throughout the university.

Why choose BU?

- Industry-standard equipment, including a green screen studio, virtual production facilities and computer labs equipped with professional production software
- Access specialist facilities including industry standard camera and sound recording equipment, post-production suites, green screen, foley studio and sound stage.
- Follow in the footsteps of graduates who have gone on to work in various roles on high profile and prestigious productions such as Star Wars: The Rise of Skywalker, Avengers: Endgame, Wonder Woman 1984.
- Explore the south of England's top tourist attractions and enjoy our 11km of sandy beaches.

Bournemouth is a thriving town on the beautiful south coast of England. It's easy to find your way around and is less than two hours from London Heathrow Airport.

Ranked by Tripadvisor as the location of one of the best beaches in the UK, Bournemouth is home to a vibrant international community, great shopping, an array of watersports – and a Premier League football team. In the surrounding area, you'll find the UNESCO World Heritage Jurassic Coast and the breathtaking New Forest, which you could explore during your Summer School visit.
